

SIGNS OF SELFISH SURFING

- You can get up for an early surf but not an early prayer and Bible time. Yes / No
- You seek out surfing advice from better surfers but not godly tips from a mature Christian. Yes / No
- You regularly read surfing magazines but not Christian books. Yes / No
- Surfing occupies more of your brain space than God? Yes / No
- You'll discipline yourself to perform at your peak for a contest, but not discipline your life for peak ministry opportunities. Yes / No
- Surfing is your chief delight, your greatest motivation. Yes / No
- The weather patterns primarily determine your weekly routine. Yes / No
- You use surfing to promote yourself, rather than Jesus. Yes / No
- You know more about surfing than Christianity. Yes / No
- You drop people and ministry as soon as the waves are on. Yes / No
- You undergo a character transformation for the worse as soon as you hit the water. Yes / No
- You surf for yourself - who, where, when in order to maximize your share of waves. Yes / No
- You see other surfers as sub-human objects to hassle waves off. Yes / No
- You don't know the names of those locals you regularly surf with. Yes / No

SIGNS OF SUBMITTED SURFING

- You take Jesus in the water with you and pray and care. Yes / No
- You see other surfers as real people with real needs. Yes / No
- You regularly use your surfing to make personal contacts for the gospel. Yes / No
- You give up prime surf time for the sake of prime ministry time. Yes / No
- You are aware that your surfing is a tool, a means of reaching a higher end. Yes / No
- You make the surfing atmosphere better when you paddle out rather than worse. Yes / No
- You are known as the best person to surf with rather than the best surfer. Yes / No
- You don't 'have' to surf when other more important priorities come up. Yes / No
- Your partner is confident enough to encourage you to go surfing. Yes / No

#GIVEAWAVE

The principal is to value relationship and exhibiting Jesus' nature – so, give the wave
